

The 9th International Conference on Mathematics and Computations.

07-09 May 2025
Zarqa University, Jordan

Objectives

The 9th International Arab Conference on Mathematics and Computations (IACMC 2025) is one of the conferences series that have been held, regularly, at Zarqa University since 2006. It is aimed to bring researchers in mathematics to discuss recent achievements in theoretical, applied mathematics and statistics in order to create a professional knowledge exchange platform. Hence, it gives the participants an opportunity to establish contacts and explore possibilities for future collaborative works. This also motivates young researchers and graduate students to work in many fertile subjects of mathematics and related fields. The three days program is expected to give a good academic exposure and intellectual stimulation to all of the participants in addition to many social activities during their residency in Jordan.
